

Additional resources

The following references are the published versions of the TBS.

- i. The 1988 Bethesda System for Reporting Cervical/Vaginal Cytological Diagnoses. NCI Workshop. JAMA August 18, 1989. Vol 262 No 7 931-4
- ii. The 1991 Bethesda System for reporting cervical/vaginal cytology diagnoses: report of the 1991 Bethesda Workshop. JAMA 1992;267:1892
- iii. The 2001 Bethesda System: Terminology for Reporting Results of Cervical Cytology. Solomon D et al. JAMA April 24, 2002. Vol 287 No 16
- iv. The Pap Test and Bethesda 2014. Nayar N and Wilbur DC. Cancer Cytopathology May 2015.271-281

Other references:

The following additional references provide further explanation about the development of TBS. The discussions provide useful insights into the role and limitations of cervical cytology in clinical practice.

1. Clinical Commentary. From Papanicolaou to Bethesda: The Rationale for a new Cervical Cytologic Classification. Kurman RJ, Malkasian GD, Sedis AS, Solomon D Obstetrics and Gynecology Vol 77 No 5 May 1991 779-782
2. The National Cancer Institute Workshop. The Bethesda System for Reporting Cervical/Vaginal Cytology Diagnoses. Acta Cytol. 1993; 37: 115-24